

Building Transit Oriented Development

Case Studies: Wayne and Lansdale, PA

In the Philadelphia metro region, Transit Oriented Development (TOD) projects are breaking the mold of traditional suburban development. Municipalities and developers are working together to create new opportunities for mixing land uses, increasing density, and investing in infill sites. This 2-part seminar will allow participants to hear first-hand how public sector in Wayne and Lansdale laid the groundwork for TOD, why developers are starting to invest in TOD, and the obstacles and successes that both parties have encountered.
